WIFE OF CZECH INDUSTRIALIST PLUNGE VICTIM

Husband Who Lost Entire Fortune In Prague Threatens Death

STORY OF FLIGHT TOLD

Confiscation Of Property By Nazis Discussed By Survivor

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 — A woman who jumped to death with her two small sons from the thirteenth floor of a Chicago hotel last night was identified by police today as the wife of a Czechoslovakian Jew whose $1,000,000 textile factory in Prague recently was confiscated by the Nazis.

The victims were Mrs. Della Langer, about 43 years old, and her sons, Thomas, 6, and Mischa, 4. Bodies of the refugee mother and her two children hurtled to the sidewalk on Michigan boulevard, where hundreds of late theatre-goers and cafe patrons were walking.

The grief-stricken husband and father, Karl Langer, 50, was kept under police guard after threatening to kill himself.

Family Without Country
The former Czech industrialist told detectives his wife often threatened to kill herself and the children since the family was stripped of their fortune and forced to flee from their home in Prague, Czechoslovakia, after the Nazi occupation. They became a family without a country, he said.

Langer said German authorities had confiscated his textile plant valued at upwards of $1,000,000, and had taken away his home and all his possessions. He said he and his wife managed to salvage about $8,000 from their fortune. The family obtained a six months' visitors' visa and came to the United States on July 1.

Assumed Name Used

A few hours later Mrs. Langer registered at the Congress Hotel in downtown Chicago as "Mrs. Della Frank" of New York City. A clerk said she asked pleasantly for a "light, airy room." She was given one on the thirteenth floor.

Later the mother and children appeared in the lobby and Mrs. Langer mentioned to a hotel employee that the children were happy because they were going to see their father today.

Then, shortly before midnight, the tragedy occurred. Two young men passing the hotel on its Michigan boulevard side narrowly escaped being struck by the woman's body as it hurtled to the sidewalk just before the two children.

The youngsters still were breathing when picked up but were pronounced dead when taken to a hospital. The mother died instantly.

Both boys were clad in sun suits. Police said this, in addition to the fact beds in the hotel room had been occupied, led them to believe (Continued on Page Six)

HEAVY RAINFALL COVERS MUCH OF CENTRAL REGION

Pickaway county escaped the heavy rains that drenched parts of central Ohio Thursday. The rain in Circleville in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Friday amounted to only .13 of an inch. High temperature Thursday was 93 and the lowest for the night, 63.

The rains north of Circleville raised the Scioto river to some extent. The Lewis & Frisinger Co., contractors on the Route 22 project, west of Circleville, said the stream was not bank full Friday morning.

In West Jefferson the rain stalled highway traffic. Heavy rains were reported in Marysville, Coshocton and Newark. Water was over roads in Athens county at three places.

FORMER CASHIER OF BANK PAROLED BY U. S. JUDGE

B. DeWitt Bach, 30, former cashier of the Second National bank, was released from the Pickaway county jail Thursday on order of Judge Mell G. Underwood of federal court.

Bach was taken to Columbus by Bryan Custer, deputy U. S. marshal. He was given advice by the judge and placed under a two-year probation.

Bach was committed to the Pickaway county jail on June 19 under a sentence of four months on an embezzlement charge. He admitted taking funds from the bank when he was an employee. Bach paid back the money in full.

DRIVER INJURED IN AUTO FLAMES

Gilford Rooker, 31, Pearl avenue, was burned on the right leg from the foot to the hip and on the left hand at 10 a. m. Friday in an auto fire.

Dr. V. D. Kerns, who treated Mr. Rooker, said that most of the burns were first degree. There is a second degree burn on Rooker's hand. The fire department was called to Pickaway and Corwin streets to extinguish the flames. Rooker told Police Chief William McCrady he was filling the vacuum tank on the auto with gasoline and a spark from the generator ignited the fuel.

The police chief took Rooker to the physician's office for treatment, then returned him to his home.

LIMA, Aug. 4 — Christian Vossler, 71, of Wapakoneta, died today of injuries received in an auto accident Wednesday in which John E. Daugherty, 63, also of Wapakoneta, was killed instantly.

Vossler died in a Lima hospital. Mrs. Daugherty, was reported near death from a skull fracture. Mrs. Walter Wilms, 45, Detroit, driver of the car which collided head-on with Daugherty's north of Wapakoneta, and Mrs. Wilms' niece, Louise Hunter, 20, also are in the Lima hospital but with less serious injuries.

F. C. C. MEN SEEK RADIO OPERATOR IN TRAGEDY HOAX

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4 — Uncle Sam's radio sleuths today investigated reports of a fake SOS that sent coast guard planes on a wild-goose chase from Miami yesterday. Technological experts of the Federal Communications Commission who spend their time tracking down law-breakers along the ether waves conceded that it is a difficult task to locate the source of a hoax distress signal.

Nevertheless, hundreds of radio "hams," amateur operators who spend most of their waking hours before home-made sets, are believed to have heard the fake call for help.

The mystery SOS supposedly came from a freighter after off the Florida Keys. A 2,500 square-mile search revealed no trace of any vessel.

Through the assistance of the amateurs, the F.C.C. may be able to snare the sender of the message. Each radio operator keeps a log of his daily activities on the air, and study of these logs may help the F.C.C. investigators in localizing the origin of the SOS.

From then on it is a matter of investigating each broadcasting station in the localized area.

If the fake SOS were repeated at various intervals the job would be easier. Through special apparatus, and by triangulation, the F.C.C. men could locate the sender in short order.

FRANCO PERMITS MAJOR POWERS TO PRO-FASCISTS

BURGOS, Spain, Aug. 4 — Generalissimo Francisco Franco today granted wide powers and prerogatives to the pro-Fascist Phalangist party of Spain, signifying his apparent determination to line up solidly with the Rome-Berlin axis.

In a sweeping decree revising the party's constitution, Franco granted virtually all the demands made by his brother-in-law and minister of the interior, Ramon Serrano Suner, leader of the Phalangists.

Issuance of the decree marked a major victory for the pro-Fascist element in Spain over the conservative, monarchistic Carlists.

The decree gives the Phalangist party complete control over the Spanish government's foreign policies, education, press, propaganda, justice, communications, transport, police and the secret service.

In addition, the Fascists are placed in charge of the women's movement, social relief work, war veterans' organizations and youth and labor institutions.

On their twelfth day of living in their small, silver-colored monoplane, Hunter and Humphrey Moody passed the 280 hour mark early today.

The flyers asked their ground crew to send aloft oil and grease to lubricate the generator and fuel pump in their plane. They also asked for a new door to replace the one dropped overboard several days ago.

TAFT'S ACTION FINDS BRICKER OFFICE SILENT

SOLONS TO DELAY VOTE

Indorsement To Be Held Up Pending Clarification By Executive

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4 — The official silence at the governor's office today on U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft's entry into the race for the 1940 Republican presidential nomination, caused much speculation among politicians and observers.

Elsewhere there was a rush of Republicans to climb aboard the Taft bandwagon with statements lauding Ohio's junior senator and pledging allegiance to him. In the Marion, home of the late President Warren G. Harding, the first "Taft-for-President" club was formed with Lewis E. Francis as the club's president.

But although last week Gov. John W. Bricker told newsmen any assumption that he was a candidate for president was erroneous and declared that Senator Taft "would make a good president," Bricker had no comment when the senator finally announced convention delegates could use his name.

May Hear from John

Still generally regarded as a "dark horse" to be trotted out in event of a convention deadlock involving Taft and other strong aspirants, Bricker, some observers believed, may have something to say conferring with Taft lieutenants on delegate plans.

Other observers thought the governor's silence indicated that his remarks last week, stepping aside as an active presidential candidate, might have been given more prominence in the press and (Continued on Page Six)

CLERMONT HOPS ON BANDWAGON FOR ROBT. TAFT

BATAVIA, Aug. 4 — Clermont county Republicans got aboard the "Taft-for-president" bandwagon today.

At a meeting attended by 73 members, the county G. O. P. council unanimously indorsed United States Senator Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati, as a candidate for the Republican nomination for chief executive in 1940.

Action followed the junior senator's announcement that he had agreed to become a presidential possibility. His decision was disclosed in a letter to his party's executive committee in adjoining Hamilton county.

In addition, the Clermont council commended Gov. John W. Bricker for clearing the path for Taft by announcing he would seek another term as governor.

NARCOTIC AGENTS ARREST FORMER FOLLIES QUEEN

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 4 — Listless and apathetic, with few traces showing of her once famed beauty, Helen Lee Worthing sat in jail today awaiting trial on narcotics charges.

The former Ziegfeld Follies star did not deny she had tried to obtain drugs with a forged doctor's prescription. She said:

"I started using drugs about three months ago because I could not sleep.

"I thought I could break the habit. I still believe I can."

Miss Worthing, made famous by Ziegfeld almost a decade ago as the "golden, glorious girl," was held in lieu of $2,500 bail for trial August 9. She waived preliminary hearing yesterday.

C. I. O. STRIKE IN DETROIT AT END

Ratification Awaited For Peace Plan; Work on '40 Models To Resume

DETROIT, Aug. 4 — A proposal to end the riot-marked month-old strike of C.I.O. skilled workers against General Motors Corporation, and thereby permit G.M. to resume preparations for 1940 model automobiles, was agreed on by representatives of the corporation and the C.I.O. auto workers union today.

The union representatives were to present the proposal to a joint council of strikers today. If the council ratifies the plan, the membership in each of the 12 plants affected by the strike will vote on the settlement plan Saturday.

Acceptance of the peace proposal by the council and the strikers would permit G.M. to resume operations in its tool and die shops Monday. A corporation spokesman said the strike already has set back two weeks, the preparations for the new models, and will mean that the corporation's 150,000 production workers will go back to their jobs two weeks late. Most of the production workers are idle now for the Summer changeover.

Federal Labor Conciliator James F. Dewey, who has worked with the negotiators four weeks, announced the settlement plan shortly after midnight today. The negotiators had been in continuous session since 10 a. m. yesterday.

QUIET PREVAILS AS TROOPS TAKE OVER DAM SCENE

KREMLING, Colo., Aug. 4 — The martial law edict of Gov. Ralph Carr was clamped down with a vengeance today by National Guardsmen in Kremmling and throughout the Green Mountain dam project area where seven persons were wounded in bloody skirmishes between strikers and sheriff's deputies.

Work at the $4,000,000 federally-financed project 18 miles from this small mountain town remained at a complete standstill as troops completed mopping up operations which included the ferreting out of all weapons.

The governor was informed by Guard Commander Adj. Gen. Harold H. Richardson that he was placing the "strictest possible military authority" over Kremmling and all through this strike-embattled district.

General Richardson said he had been forced to take the unusual precautions following renewed clashes of gunfire and reported cases of intimidation of union workers.

The commander said he did not know when work could be resumed on the dam, but that if the strikers and the Warner Construction company, Chicago contractors on the project, wanted to negotiate he would see to it that nothing interfered with their talks.

MINISTER TELLS COMMONS CRISIS GROWS IN EAST

Tokyo Embassy Threatened Again By Violent Demonstrators

LONDON, Aug. 4 — Great Britain "might find it necessary to send a fleet" to Japanese waters "under certain circumstances," Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain warned during a fiery debate over the Far Eastern situation in the House of Commons today.

Chamberlain's stern admonition that naval measures might be taken if the Anglo-Japanese crisis worsens came only after he admitted bluntly that Britain now was practically helpless to aid her harassed nationals in the Orient.

Tension was high in the house as Chamberlain made his statement, for members, assembling for the final session before recessing until Oct. 3 had read of a third violent demonstration before the British embassy in Tokyo.

Opponents of the prime minister concentrated their attack on the charge that Chamberlain showed weakness in failing to follow the example of the United States in denouncing the 1911 Japanese trade treaty.

Chamberlain repeated that the circumstances were different, and might require different treatment. "The situation for Britain in the Far East is particularly difficult," he said.

Nationals In Danger

"The help we can afford our nationals at present is limited. "Our fleet in the Far East at present is inferior to Japan's. "Under certain circumstances, we might find it necessary to send a fleet out there.

"But we hope that situation will not arise. We would rather settle our differences by negotiation, rather than by threat of force." CADDY DROWNS TRYING TO SAVE PAL FROM WATER

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4 — Friends of 16-year-old Keeran Walker, of suburban Lockland, today proudly but sadly retold how the boy met his death while attempting to save another youth from drowning in a rain-swollen creek.

The incident occurred following a cloudburst on the Wyoming Golf course, where the Walker boy and his friend, William Demoret, 14, were caddies. William was pulled to safety as Keeran was swept to his death in a drain pipe.

According to the survivor's story, older caddies suggested "initiating" the newer ones after the heavy rainstorm. William and Keeran were among the newcomers.

He said they proceeded to the creek, where they removed their shoes and stockings and were told to wade in the stream, usually a trickle of water.

The two boys and other caddies were in the water when someone saw a wall of water, estimated at five feet, rushing toward them. All scrambled to safety except Demoret, who was swept down stream to the opening of the drain pipe.

When Walker went to his friend's aid, he was trapped by the current that held Demoret against the pipe. As rescuers pulled Demoret to safety, the other boy was carried into the pipe by the torrent.

GRAIN AND MALT BUILDING GUTTED BY GREAT FIRE

CHICAGO, Aug. 4 — A raging fire was spreading through a seven-story building of the Northwestern Grain and Malt company on Chicago's northwest side today. Hundreds of firemen were battling the flames, which threatened to spread from the brick building across a loading platform to 25 large concrete silos, where grain is stored.

A huge money loss was feared. Only one man was in the building when the blaze was discovered. He escaped and turned in the alarm. More than 100 policemen were required to keep back a crowd of 2,000 persons who flocked to the scene.

Every precaution was taken to keep everyone away from the plant, which covers two square blocks. Firemen said the silos might explode.

G. W. Hales, president of the Hales and Hunter company, feed manufacturers and parent company of the grain concern, said the plant contained 15,000 bushels of finished malt for brewers and 800,000 bushels of grain.

Cause of the fire was not known.

THREE NEW SUITS PUT ON RECORD IN COUNTY COURT

Three new suits, one for damages and two for divorces, were on file Friday in Common Pleas court. Martin Shepard, E. Mound street, filed suit for $2,500 damages against the Reinhardt Transfer Co., of Portsmouth, for personal injuries and damages to his automobile. The case involves an accident on Route 23 about eight miles south of Circleville last Jan. 27. Martha Henson, Ashville, filed suit for divorce from Thad Henson, Circleville, charging cruelty. They were married Sept. 8, 1916, the petition says, and have four children. Mrs. Henson asks that she be granted reasonable rights of visitation to the two minor children residing with the defendant. Herchel J. OHIOAN ADMITS KILLING WIFE; TROUBLE CITED

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4—Eight years of marital bickering ended today for 28-year-old Owen Brigman, of suburban Rossmoyne, as police charged him with murder in connection with the fatal shooting of his 23-year-old wife and mother of his two children. Deputy Sheriffs William Holte and Edward Nolting reported they found the husband in tears sitting on a curb near the body of his wife, Dorothy. They said Brigman confessed firing the fatal shot that struck the victim in the back of the head as she attempted to flee. The shooting occurred in front of the home of Joseph Rillo, in suburban Deed Park, where officers said Mrs. Brigman had been visiting during an all-day party. Brigman, a metal finisher at an automobile assembly plant in Norwood, reportedly told arresting officers that the shooting occurred following a quarrel in which his wife accused him of associating with other women. B. DeWitt Bach, 30, former cashier of the Second National bank, was released from the Pickaway county jail Thursday on order of Judge Mel G. Underwood of federal court. Bach was taken to Columbus by Bryan Custer, deputy U. S. marshal. He was given advice by the judge and placed under a two-year probation. Bach was committed to the Pickaway county jail on June 19 under a sentence of four months on an embezzlement charge. He admitted taking funds from the bank when he was an employee. Bach paid back the money in full.

Gilford Rooker, 31, Pearl avenue, was burned on the right leg from the foot to the hip and on the left hand at 10 a. m. Friday in an auto fire. Dr. V. D. Kerns, who treated Mr. Rooker, said that most of the burns were first degree. There is a second degree burn on Rooker's hand. The fire department was called to Pickaway and Corwin streets to extinguish the flames. Rooker told Police Chief William McCrady he was filling the vacuum tank on the auto with gasoline and a spark from the generator ignited the fuel. The police chief took Rooker to the physician's office for treatment, then returned him to his home.

F. C. C. MEN SEEK RADIO OPERATOR IN TRAGEDY HOAX

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—Uncle Sam's radio sleuths today investigated reports of a fake SOS that sent coast guard planes on a wild-goose chase from Miami yesterday. Technological experts of the Federal Communications Commission who spend their time tracking down law-breakers along the ether waves conceded that it is a difficult task to locate the source of a hoax distress signal. Nevertheless, hundreds of radio "hams," amateur operators who spend most of their waking hours before home-made sets, are believed to have heard the fake call for help. The mystery SOS supposedly came from a freighter afloat off the Florida Keys. A 2,500 square-mile search revealed no trace of any vessel. Through the assistance of the amateurs, the F.C.C. may be able to snare the sender of the message. Each radio operator keeps a log of his daily activities on the air, and study of these logs may help the F.C.C. investigators in localizing the origin of the SOS. From then on it is a matter of investigating each broadcasting station in the localized area. If the fake SOS were repeated at various intervals the job would be easier. Through special apparatus, and by triangulation, the F.C.C. men could locate the sender in short order.

WIFE OF CZECH INDUSTRIALIST PLUNGE VICTIM

Husband Who Lost Entire Fortune In Prague Threatens Death

STORY OF FLIGHT TOLD

Confiscation Of Property By Nazis Discussed

By Survivor

CHICAGO, Aug. 4—A woman who jumped to death with her two small sons from the thirteenth floor of a Chicago hotel last night was identified by police today as the wife of a Czechoslovakian Jew whose $1,000,000 textile factory in Prague recently was confiscated by the Nazis.

The victims were Mrs. Della Langer, about 43 years old, and her sons, Thomas, 6, and Mischa, 4. Bodies of the refugee mother and her two children hurtled to the sidewalk on Michigan boulevard, where hundreds of late theatre-goers and cafe patrons were walking.

The grief-stricken husband and father, Karl Langer, 50, was kept under police guard after threatening to kill himself.

Family Without Country

The former Czech industrialist told detectives his wife often had threatened to kill herself and the children since the family was stripped of their fortune and forced to flee from their home in Prague, Czechoslovakia, after the Nazi occupation. They became a family without a country, he said.

Langer said German authorities had confiscated his textile plant valued at upwards of $1,000,000, and had taken away his home and all his possessions. He said he and his wife managed to salvage about $8,000 from their fortune. The family obtained a six months' visitors' visa and came to the United States on July 1.

The Langers came to Chicago about two weeks ago and took an apartment. Yesterday the mother left home about 1 p. m., with the children saying they were going to the zoo.

Assumed Name Used

A few hours later Mrs. Langer registered at the Congress Hotel in downtown Chicago as "Mrs. Della Frank" of New York City. A clerk said she asked pleasantly for a "light, airy room." She was given one on the thirteenth floor. Later the mother and children appeared in the lobby and Mrs. Langer mentioned to a hotel employee that the children were happy because they were going to see their father today.

Then, shortly before midnight, the tragedy occurred. Two young men passing the hotel on its Michigan boulevard side narrowly escaped being struck by the woman's body as it hurtled to the sidewalk just before the two children.

The youngsters still were breathing when picked up but were pronounced dead when taken to a hospital. The mother died instantly.

Both boys were clad in sun suits. Police said this, in addition to the fact beds in the hotel room had been occupied, led them to believe (Continued on Page Six)

HEAVY RAINFALL COVERS MUCH OF CENTRAL REGION

Pickaway county escaped the heavy rains that drenched parts of central Ohio Thursday. The rain in Circleville in the 24 hours prior to 8 a. m. Friday amounted to only .13 of an inch. High temperature Thursday was 93 and the lowest for the night, 63. The rains north of Circleville raised the Scioto river to some extent. The Lewis & Frisinger Co., contractors on the Route 22 project, west of Circleville, said the stream was not bank full Friday morning. In West Jefferson the rain stalled highway traffic. Heavy rains were reported in Marysville, Coshocton and Newark. Water was over roads in Athens county at three places.

LONDON, Aug. 4 — Stricken with another attack of a recurring heart ailment, Superintendent T. C. Jenkins of the London prison farm was reported in critical condition today at his home. Meanwhile, Jenkins' aides continued the search for three inmates who escaped and were believed to be in the vicinity. Four made the break, but one surrendered a few hours later.

Jenkins had supervised the hunt until he became ill. A physician was called. The escape was said to have aggravated his condition.

The inmates still at large were Louis Vandervort, convicted slayer of a Wilmington police officer; Harold Curtner, Miami county robber and Nathan King, former accomplice of "Pretty Boy" Floyd. The hunt centered in this vicinity after Charles Adomack, one of the quartet, gave himself up after hiding in a soy bean field for several hours.

Latest reports said the trio were seen in a house at Nelson Corners, 10 miles from the institution.

Shortly before the escape, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood reportedly told Jenkins to "clean up" conditions at the prison farm.

COUNTIAN'S YIELD FROM WHEAT IS 36 BU. AN ACRE

R. G. McCoy, of Washington township, threshed 12½ acres of Thome wheat last week with a yield of 36 bushels to the acre.

Thome is a new variety of wheat released last fall to growers by the Ohio experiment station at Wooster. It is named after Dr. Charles E. Thome, long time director of the station. Interest in the new variety is shown by the fact that all growers were sold out far in advance of the harvest season.

Perhaps the reason so many nations are scrambling for pieces of Antarctica they are under the impression that some day icebergs will be commercially valuable.

CAMPAIGN FOR TON OF PENNIES IS UNDER WAY

Bottles Placed Friday In Business Houses To Aid Playground Drive

$3,000 May Be Gained

Lynch To Call Solicitors For Report; Vacations Slow Work

Placards and bottles in the campaign for a ton of pennies for Circleville's playground were distributed in downtown stores Friday. The campaign is sponsored by the Retail Merchants association.

The association plans to collect the pennies at regular intervals store window where residents and heap them in a downtown may keep in touch with the drive. The penny campaign was designed especially to give all persons an opportunity to contribute toward the playground. If the organization is successful in the penny campaign it will boost the park fund about $3,000.

Frank Lynch, chairman of the general drive for the playground, plans to call a meeting of district workers in the financial campaign early next week. The city has been divided into six districts for the financial drive. Vacations have slowed down the campaign, Mr. Lynch explained. It is hoped a fund of $10,000 can be raised for the playground. This would provide $3,000 for purchase of land and the balance would be used to sponsor a W.P.A. project for improvements.

ALL INTERESTED ASKED TO SOIL PROGRAM AUG. 8

Interested Pickaway countians are invited to attend the soil conservation demonstration tour to be held next Tuesday, Aug. 8. The tour will start in Tarlton at 1 p. m. a demonstration will be conducted on the O. S. Mowery farm, south of Tarlton.

This demonstration is under the direction of H. A. Reichel, superintendent of Camp Fairfield of the Soil Conservation service, located near Lancaster. Three township in Pickaway County are in the Camp Fairfield area.

C. E. Blakeslee, acting county agent, of Pickaway county, states that this demonstration will present very valuable information to farmers and operators of hilly and rolling land. The eastern part of the county and certain areas in the western part of the county are quite largely made up of hilly and rolling land and are rapidly losing their surface soil.

Figures from Ohio State university show that three-fourths of the land area of Ohio is affected by soil erosion. Twelve million acres of this area or one half this area have lost more than 25 percent of the top soil.

Those attending the demonstration will be shown how to recognize soil erosion so that when found, steps may be taken to prevent erosion. The use of diversion terraces, contour strip cropping, fertilizer, lime, and tree planting in soil conservation work will be shown.

Soil conservation work is progressing rapidly in Pickaway county. Much valuable Pickaway county soil on slopes can be saved if work is started soon enough to recognize erosion and stop it.

With all those telescope pointed at him, it's no wonder the Mars looks pink. Even planet has the right to blush.

TWO PROMINENT PERSONS DROWN IN WINNEBAGO

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 4—An attempt to turn sharply at high speed in her new motorboat, causing it to capsize, was blamed today for the drowning of Mrs. Lillian Magruder, 43, and a friend Clarence Fechner, Kenosha automobile dealer, in Lake Winnebago last night.

Details of the accident were given police by Otto Jandl, Benjamin Schaefer and Herbert Brown, all of Racine, who completed the party but were rescued.

Mrs. Magruder was the wife of Bernard Magruder, an executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, Racine malted milk fortune heiress.

'CITY OF STRAW' BEING ERECTED AT CCA PLANT

Erection of a "city of straw" is under way at the Container Corporation plant. So far three ricks have been erected with more to go up as new straw is received. The straw is being moved to the plant from a radius of about 50 miles from Circleville.

The explosion which killed nine persons, destroyed five elevators, and caused property damage of $3,500,000 in Chicago, May 11, probably was caused by the ignition of grain dust at the bottom of one of the vertical conveyors.

C. E. Blakeslee, acting county agent, of Pickaway county, states that this demonstration will present very valuable information to farmers and operators of hilly and rolling land. The eastern part of the county and certain areas in the western part of the county are quite largely made up of hilly and rolling land and are rapidly losing their surface soil.

Figures from Ohio State university show that three-fourths of the land area of Ohio is affected by soil erosion. Twelve million acres of this area or one half this area have lost more than 25 percent of the top soil.

Those attending the demonstration will be shown how to recognize soil erosion so that when found, steps may be taken to prevent erosion. The use of diversion terraces, contour strip cropping, fertilizer, lime, and tree planting in soil conservation work will be shown.

Soil conservation work is progressing rapidly in Pickaway county. Much valuable Pickaway county soil on slopes can be saved if work is started soon enough to recognize erosion and stop it.

BRICKER NAMES GOBLE TO O. N. G. POSITION

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4—Gov. John W. Bricker today announced the appointment of Lt. Col. Chester A. Goble, for many years finance officer in the adjutant general's office, as U. TWO PROMINENT PERSONS DROWN IN WINNEBAGO

OSHKOSH, Wis., Aug. 4—An attempt to turn sharply at high speed in her new motorboat, causing it to capsize, was blamed today for the drowning of Mrs. Lillian Magruder, 45, and a friend Clarence Fechner, Kenosha automobile dealer, in Lake Winnebago last night.

Details of the accident were given police by Otto Jandl, Benjamin Schaefer and Herbert Brown, all of Racine, who completed the party but were rescued.

Mrs. Magruder was the wife of Bernard Magruder, an executor of the estate of the late Mrs. Maybelle Horlick Sidley, Racine malted milk fortune heirless.

Erection of a "city of straw" is under way at the Container Corporation plant. So far three ricks have been erected with more to go up as new straw is received. The straw is being moved to the plant from a radius of about 50 miles from Circleville.

The explosion which killed nine persons, destroyed five elevators, and caused property damage of $3,500,000 in Chicago, May 11, probably was caused by the ignition of grain dust at the bottom of one of the vertical conveyors.

OPEN LETTERS

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

AUTHORITIES: I believe that the lenient campaign you have been waging in regard to traffic violations should be continued, especially when it comes to parking between the proper lanes. If any motorist, old or young, is able to determine between which lanes he should park, then that person deserves a Houdini rating. Yellow lines and white lines are found on the city's streets. Strangers in Circleville should not be expected to know between which lines to place their cars. Circleville and Pickaway county persons who do know that the lanes were painted white this Spring should be able to properly place their cars, but far be it from me to suggest that any who get into the wrong locations be given tags. This traffic question goes on and on. Council decided a week ago to take up the problem of an added patrolman, one to check on traffic, but did nothing about the necessity at its meeting this week. A general traffic survey in Circleville would be a valuable undertaking for council, with experts who know their business doing the work. The job would cost some money but its results would be well worth all the expense involved.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WEATHERMAN, FARMERS

FRIENDS: Please save any unusual weather conditions you may have in your bag of tricks until after Pickaway county's corn crop has been cut. Pickaway county farmers have prospects this year of the largest corn crop in history. They hope no wind storms arrive to ruin their crops. Pickaway county farmers should conduct a campaign this year to give corn cutting and husking jobs to Pickaway countians. Every season there are hundreds of residents of southern Ohio and Kentucky moving into the county for this work, taking jobs from Pickaway countians. Give this work to Pickaway county men who need it. Remember this work reduces relief rolls.

CIRCUITEER.

TO NORTHEAST RESIDENTS

FOLK: At present the W. P. A. has a project in operation in the city for the construction of curbs and gutters and sidewalks. Through this program property owners may obtain the improvements at a very low cost, while at the same time they are providing work for needy persons. Many properties in the new additions in the Northend could be greatly improved by the construction of sidewalks. Northend home owners should give this program some serious consideration, both for the improvement of their properties and from a civic standpoint. Streets are not to be used for pedestrian traffic.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BOYS, GIRLS

YOUNGSTERS: A contest will be held in Circleville next week during which the healthiest boy and girl will be chosen. The county has many who should participate in this event, the winner of which will represent the county at the Ohio State Fair. Entries should be made immediately because the contest, to be in the county health office, is near at hand. Contact the County Club headquarters at the Farm Bureau immediately if you wish to participate. Valuable prizes are available for the winners in the state event.

CIRCUITEER.

TO HORSE LOVERS

FRIENDS: Every time that I read about Pickaway county horses winning ribbons in various county and state competitions, I wonder why something is not done by you folk to bring the horse back to the place it should hold in the affairs of Pickaway county. Some years ago Pickaway county was famous for its horses, and it should be even more widely-recognized today for fine steeds. There are enough lovers of fine horseflesh in our community to get behind an active organization of some kind.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIRCLEVILLE FOLK

VOTERS: Next Tuesday, Aug. 8, there will be a primary election in Circleville. It has been a rather quiet affair, but still there are persons in some sections of the city who should cast their ballots. There are contests for council positions in the Third and Fourth Wards, both on the Democratic ticket. Although the residents of other city wards have no special reason for going to the polls, those in wards where contests exist should cast their votes. The position of a councilman is one of importance. Select the men whom you believe will best represent your ward and the city on civic matters.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: Rural folk should make an effort to attend the soil erosion demonstration tour to be conducted near Tarlton, Aug. 8, beginning at 1 p. m. The group will meet in Tarlton and go to the farm of O. S. Mowery. Other farms in the section will be visited. The tour has been arranged for the benefit of Pickaway county folk to acquaint them with the dangers of soil erosion. There will be discussions of soils. Plan to attend the tour.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER of Montana is not yet what I'd call an outstanding 1940 Democratic presidential probability. He's getting to be a reasonable possibility, however. Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado gave him an excellent boost the other day and news commentators, with whom the Montana solon is very popular, have been supplementing it with a deal of classy publicity. That he's on his way toward becoming a candidatorially pretty prominent doesn't seem unlikely.

To anyone at all familiar with Wheeler's early record it sounds funny now to hear him referred to by Senator Johnson as moderate enough to be acceptable to Democratic conservatives; equally funny to hear certain critics wondering if he isn't too conservative to get by with ultra-New Dealers.

Burton K. certainly rated as a rip-snorting radical in I. W. W. days in Montana, when it took plenty of nerve to be so classified. But nerve is what he's got plenty of. Didn't he defend Bill Dunn, agitator accused of what at present would be described as communist activities? You bet he did. He was radical enough to run vice presidentially on the Progressive ticket with the elder Senator Robert M. La Follette. When the Soviet regime was young he took a trip to Russia for a look-see. On his return I got an interview from him, and he asked to see a copy of the yarn before publication. "I wouldn't make such a request," he explained, "only you know what a red I'm supposed to be. If I'm quoted as having seen a decent thing in that country, I'm liable to be cited for high treason."

Does all this imply that he considered himself, and was so considered, middling rampagous? The correct answer appears to me to be in the affirmative.

BUT OF LATE?

Of late, though? That's different.

The Montanan was a conspicuous plugger for Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential nomination in 1932. He also campaigned vigorously for "F. D.'s" election. It was well for awhile. Then President Roosevelt undertook to reorganize the federal supreme court—to "pack" it, as some said. Burton K. not only fought that proposal; he led the fight against it. Gosh! how sore that made the New Dealers! They'd expected opposition from the recognized conservatives. But from a chap like the Montana statesman! "What's the matter," they demanded, "with Wheeler?" From that minute they began to denounce him as worse than a reactionary—as a deserter.

Next thing somebody asked him if he'd accept a vice presidential nomination in 1940 on a ticket with Roosevelt, as a third term. He answered that he wouldn't—because he didn't believe in presidential third terms. This made the New Dealers madder than ever. They're not sure that "F. D." is a third term seeker, but they more than resent having anyone try, in advance, to foreclose against such a possibility.

Within the last couple of weeks Burton K. also has voted against the administration's money bill, not to mention some of its other pet measures.

CAN HE BE A COMPROMISE?

He's been illighted, anyway. Not altogether unfavorably, either.

Of course he's violently antagonized the do-or-die New Dealers, but there are quite a lot of good liberals who don't go quite as far as the New Deal extremists do and who emphatically are anti-third-termers. They still reckon B. K. into their lineup.

On the opposite hand the conservatives are not as much afraid of him as they were. They doubtless would prefer a candidate with a more rightward past than his, but they do think that maybe he's a convert, and they hold that a convert, who perhaps can be elected, would be better than a dyed-in-the-wool old-timer, who wouldn't stand a chance of election.

Nor is he too old, like John N. Garner or Cordell Hull.

Neither, any more, is he unduly one-sided, like Harry L. Hopkins, Harold L. Ickes or Henry Wallace.

His geography isn't first-class, but that might be balanced by an eastern tail to his ticket.

He should catch some Republican votes, too—western Republicans especially.

He isn't a corkscrew good orator, but in off-hand debate, he's a dandy.

His personality's delightful. All in all, he's no IM-possibility.

Plantar Warts Yield to X-ray

B. LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE QUESTION that comes from the frozen north is "what to do for plantar warts." (Plantar, according to the dictionary, means "Of and pertaining to the sole of the foot.")

Two misconceptions seem to obtain about them. One is that they are caused by infection, and are especially likely to be picked up around unsanitary operated swimming pools. The other is that there is some simple and cheap and home-made remedy that will remove them.

Form on Bottom of Foot

They generally form at points of pressure on the bottom of the foot. They appear on both feet and at symmetrical places. There are usually four or five of them, grouped, and often so closely grouped that they fuse.

The cores are soft and pulpy and surrounded by a firm horny ring. The core is characteristic and occurs in no other form of wart or callosity.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Over the surface of the core may be seen multiple small black points. These are small blood vessels in which the blood has clotted, and the vessels may rupture, with the result that blood may cover the surface of the wart.

They are exquisitely painful, much more so than even the most painful corn or callosity. They are so painful that in the course of time they entirely disable the victim. In this stage they prevent walking and demand treatment.

Common Remedies of No Avail

It has been suggested that some simple form of home treatment, such as the application of ordinary corn plasters, might work. None of these treatments ever does work completely. Old-fashioned professional surgical procedures, such as cauterization and cutting them out, resulted in painful wounds and scars.

The use of the X-ray and electro-desiccation are the modern methods by which plantar warts may now be ured. This is not so generally known as it should be, Dr. George C. Andrews of New York says.

I am sorry that I cannot recommend any other methods, but it is best for those interested to know that, simple as they may seem themselves, trying home remedies on them is just a waste of time.

Electro-Desiccation

Electro-desiccation is accomplished by the use of diathermy in which the current generates in the tissues a heat sufficient to destroy. It is more selective than ordinary surgical cauterization. Most common in the United States are not far from an institution which has apparatus of this kind. All common in the United States are not far from an institution which has apparatus of this kind. All common in the United States are not far from an institution which has apparatus of this kind.

As to cause, there is an old discussion among dermatologists about warts. Some unquestionably are infections. But in most cases they are like benign tumors. Plantar warts are more likely to be the effect of pressure, moisture and chemical irritations than of infection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. A. B.: "Will you please tell whether there is any method known to the medical profession of predetermining the sex of a child?"

Answer: No such method is known.

J. L. H.: "Is simple washing under a cold tap with or without soap sufficient cleansing for the home thermometer when used in infectious diseases?"

Answer: Yes, but an additional safeguard would be to wipe it with alcohol or formalin first.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
LORENA HAMILTON, in the desert country of Arizona, to visit her uncle, meets SHOT ROGERS, one of the Phantom ranch cowboys at the railroad station.
JERRY DALE, college bred, is a newcomer to Phantom ranch, who has corresponded with Lorena.

YESTERDAY: Jerry finds Lorena, following her escape from the Mexicans, tells her the Brazes, her aunt and uncle, have been greatly worried since Rogers, carrying her bedded bag, returned.

CHAPTER SEVEN

JERRY DALE didn't go back down trail to tell the posse that Lorena had been found. Instead, he put Midnight on a big mare and sent that black youngster. Midnight was delighted; thrilled with a sense of adventure and personal importance. He found the posse swelled to nearly 20 men now, including Shot Rogers—nearing the Ghost river ford. They had stopped for a conference about dividing and sowing the hills thoroughly for the missing girl or any tracks that might be a clue to her. They knew from the Negro's hallooing that he had news, even before he galloped up to them.

"What is it, Midnight?" George Brazee demanded sternly.

"Yassuh, whoo-wee, dis mare she sho can single-foot, Mistuh Brazee!"

"Where are you going? What is it? Have you—have they heard anything? Or—?" Mr. Brazee grasped the black lad's leg.

"Oh, Yassuh, a white lady done come in. Mistuh Jerry he took and brought her in: on a hoss, suh."

"Is she hurt? Dead? Answer me, Midnight!"

The men had pressed close, staring intently at him. Midnight seemed to discover their presence then, and looked round-eyed from one to the other while answering slowly.

"Now, suh, she ain't rightly dead, I reckon. But she don't look so pert. She—"

"She what?" Shot Rogers snapped that. Question at him. "What about her? Was she badly mistreated? Was she conscious?"

"Suh?"

"I say, was she conscious? Could she—good guns, kid! Could she talk and see and hear and all?"

Midnight swallowed. White cowboys were strange people sometimes, he knew. But he sort of worshiped Mistuh Shot Rogers and wanted to please him.

"Mistuh Shot, I never asked nobody, to tell you de truf. But I reckon she wasn't 'sconscious none, naw suh. Leastways, it didn't show none, far as I could see, but I wasn't—"

"Let's get going!" George Brazee interrupted. "I want to thank all of you men. I'll do it better when I have more time. I don't guess we'll need the outside help any longer, since she's found, but any of you who want to ride on with us is welcome. You're always welcome at the Phantom, as you know."

He led off, spurring immediately to a lazy, easy gallop, the pace which a good horse can maintain indefinitely. Without a word of discussion the entire troop filed after him. They were a bunch of determined men, some quite stern of face, all of them a bit weary from a full night in the saddle, but all deeply concerned with the trouble facing George Brazee.

Shot Rogers and some of the others clung near the mare that young Midnight was riding and sought to question the lad again.

"Has she been shot?" Rogers asked. "You sure she wasn't dead?"

"Aw, Mistuh Shot, you all cain't hurrah me none, leastways not in daytime, suh! I knows you all says it's ghosts in Ghost canyon and on Phantom ranch, but shuh!" Midnight was quite sophisticated about it; one of the cowboys himself now. "Listen, kid, I'm not hurrawing! I'm serious, can't you understand? Now answer me carefully—was she dead or not?"

"Ef she was, Mistuh Shot, den I sho seen a ghost in daytime! Whoo!"

"You mean—"

"She was walking along wid Miss Sally and Mistuh Jerry. He had his arm aroun' her, friendly like, and—"

"Why?"

"Suh?"

"Why did he have his arm around her? Was she—was he carrying her? Or helping her? Couldn't she talk?"

"Yas, suh, she was laughing and talking sweet talk to him, until Miss Sally sho rush out and cry."

"Um," murmured Shot Rogers then. He felt infinite relief. Four men had been killed in the recent Phantom ranch trouble with rustlers. It was inconceivable that a harmless girl, a stranger, should be harmed, but he had been responsible for sending her alone to the ranch from Blanco and he had been almost beside himself with worry.

"What happened to her, Midnight?" he went on. "That was a new horse of mine, all right, but he was trustworthy. And I saw she could ride. Did he throw her, or fall? Or what?"

"I never asked nobody, Mistuh Shot, suh."

The matter stood that way until the troop of riders reined in at the Brazee home itself. Mrs. Brazee had heard them coming. When she ran out to greet her husband and his friends, they expected the worst. They didn't see Jerry Dale smiling happily on the porch.

"What is it, Sally?" George Brazee demanded, calmly.

"George, she was kidnapped! By Mexicans!"

The men all were alert, not even dismounting, in their intense interest. Shot Rogers edged forward.

"Go on," George requested.

"What happened?"

She gave every detail she knew, but hers was second-hand information and so presently Lorena herself was brought out to talk with them. A load seemed to be lifted off the men when they saw, not a corpse or near-dead person, but a bright and smiling young woman, exceptionally pretty. Lorena had eaten amazingly, topped the meal with two cups of coffee and two hours in bed. Bruises still ached, but she felt good enough to ignore the pain.

She shook hands with every one of the men, adding special thanks to Rogers for his aid the day before. And then she had to face a siege of questioning which took nearly an hour.

"Well, sir," her Uncle George

remarked at last, "you probably done the only thing you could, honey, but I don't know why you weren't killed when you jumped off that cliff. I know the stretch of river you mean. The walls high there. Must be 50 or 60 feet. You've got some of your Aunt Sally's spunk!"

"I hit in the soft tree foliage, as I told you. And the sand was soft. I counted on them before hand."

The men all were admiring her not for her looks alone, but for her nerve. The talk shifted, however, to the kidnappers themselves.

"You say they talked about somebody named Luis Escobar?" Shot Rogers asked.

"Yes, Mr. Rogers. It sounded like that—like Louise Ace-co-bar."

"It's a man's name. Spanish. Loo-ees, spelled L-u-i-s."

"Since those men were Mexicans," another rancher put in, "I'd bet they were in the gang responsible for you, cattle losses and for the death of those men, George."

"No doubt," agreed Mr. Brazee.

"Oh, George!" Mrs. Brazee spoke then. "Can't something be done to stop it? I—we can't have people—Lorena—anybody's life endangered this way! Can't we?"

"We can sure do something, Mrs. Brazee, ma'am!" an elderly man declared. "We'll ride down every thief in this country! If the law is unable to cope with them, why, we can do it ourselves!"

"Certainly!" put in another. "If there aren't enough ranch men and sheriff's deputies, we could even get a bunch of army cavalry to help. There's men at Fort Huachuca."

"Hold on," said Shot Rogers, earnestly. "Didn't I hear you say once, Mr. Brazee, that you weren't sure where the line is? The line between the United States and Mexico?"

"That's right, son. My ranch property goes right to the line, according to deed. But it's awfully rugged and wild up there in the rough hills. Even the survey is vague. No markers or anything. It would cost a lot to have it surveyed, and—"

"Unh-huhm," nodded Shot Rogers. "Well now, another thing—this Luis Escobar is no peanut rustler or border crook. He's a power in Mexico. An ex-revolutionist building another strong following. We'd better get on a political mess if we brought soldiers; national diplomacy, and all that. It's a fight we better all pitch in to help you with, but keep it as quiet and among ourselves as we can."

Nobody answered at once. But Lorena, staring up at the mounted ranchmen, saw most of them nodding stolidly, earnestly. Somehow she sensed from their faces a premonition of action and danger to come.

OPEN LETTERS

TO SAFETY DEPARTMENT

AUTHORITIES: I believe that the lenient campaign you have been waging in regard to traffic violations should be continued, especially when it comes to parking between the proper lanes. If any motorist, old or young, is able to determine between which lanes he should park, then that person deserves a Houdini rating. Yellow lines and white lines are found on the city's streets. Strangers in Circleville should not be expected to know between which lines to place their cars. Circleville and Pickaway county persons who do know that the lanes were painted white this Spring should be able to properly place their cars, but far be it from me to suggest that any who get into the wrong locations be given tags. This traffic question goes on and on. Council decided a week ago to take up the problem of an added patrolman, one to check on traffic, but did nothing about the necessity at its meeting this week. A general traffic survey in Circleville would be a valuable undertaking for council, with experts who know their business doing the work. The job would cost some money but its results would be well worth all the expense involved.

CIRCUITEER.

TO WEATHERMAN, FARMERS

FRIENDS: Please save any unusual weather conditions you may have in your bag of tricks until after Pickaway county's corn crop has been cut. Pickaway county farmers have prospects this year of the largest corn crop in history. They hope no wind storms arrive to ruin their crops. Pickaway county farmers should conduct a campaign this year to give corn cutting and husking jobs to Pickaway countians. Every season there are hundreds of residents of southern Ohio and Kentucky moving into the county for this work, taking jobs from Pickaway countians. Give this work to Pickaway county men who need it. Remember this work reduces relief rolls.

CIRCUITEER.

TO NORTHEAST RESIDENTS

FOLK: At present the W. P. A. has a project in operation in the city for the construction of curbs and gutters and sidewalks. Through this program property owners may obtain the improvements at a very low cost, while at the same time they are providing work for needy persons. Many properties in the new additions in the Northend could be greatly improved by the construction of sidewalks. Northend home owners should give this program some serious consideration, both for the improvement of their properties and from a civic standpoint. Streets are not to be used for pedestrian traffic.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BOYS, GIRLS

YOUNGSTERS: A contest will be held in Circleville next week during which the healthiest boy and girl will be chosen. The county has many who should participate in this event, the winner of which will represent the county at the Ohio State Fair. Entries should be made immediately because the contest, to be in the county health office, is near at hand. Contact the County Club headquarters at the Farm Bureau immediately if you wish to participate. Valuable prizes are available for the winners in the state event.

CIRCUITEER

TO HORSE LOVERS

FRIENDS: Every time that I read about Pickaway county horses winning ribbons in various county and state competitions, I wonder why something is not done by you folk to bring the horse back to the place it should hold in the affairs of Pickaway county. Some years ago Pickaway county was famous for its horses, and it should be even more widely-recognized today for fine steeds. There are enough lovers of fine horseflesh in our community to get behind an active organization of some kind.

CIRCUITEER.

TO CIRCLEVILLE FOLK

VOTERS: Next Tuesday, Aug. 8, there will be a primary election in Circleville. It has been a rather quiet affair, but still there are persons in some sections of the city who should cast their ballots. There are contests for council positions in the Third and Fourth Wards, both on the Democratic ticket. Although the residents of other city wards have no special reason for going to the polls, those in wards where contests exist should cast their votes. The position of a councilman is one of importance. Select the men whom you believe will best represent your ward and the city on civic matters.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: Rural folk should make an effort to attend the soil erosion demonstration tour to be conducted near Tarlton, Aug. 8, beginning at 1 p. m. The group will meet in Tarlton and go to the farm of O. S. Mowery. Other farms in the section will be visited. The tour has been arranged for the benefit of Pickaway county folk to acquaint them with the dangers of soil erosion. There will be discussions of soils. Plan to attend the tour.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

SENATOR BURTON K. WHEELER of Montana is not yet what I'd call an outstanding 1940 Democratic presidential probability. He's getting to be a reasonable possibility, however. Senator Edwin C. Johnson of Colorado gave him an excellent boost the other day and news commentators, with whom the Montana solon is very popular, have been supplementing it with a deal of classy publicity. That he's on his way toward becoming a presidentially pretty prominent doesn't seem unlikely.

To anyone at all familiar with Wheeler's early record it sounds funny now to hear him referred to by Senator Johnson as moderate enough to be acceptable to Democratic conservatives; equally funny to hear certain critics wondering if he isn't too conservative to get by with ultra-New Dealers.

Burton K. certainly rated as a rip-snorting radical in I. W. W. days in Montana, when it took plenty of nerve to be so classified. But nerve is what he's got plenty of. Didn't he defend Bill Dunn, agitator accused of what at present would be described as communistic activities? You bet he did. He was radical enough to run vice presidentially on the Progressive ticket with the elder Senator Robert M. La Follette. When the Soviet regime was young he took a trip to Russia for a look-see. On his return I got an interview from him, and he asked to see a copy of the yarn before publication. "I wouldn't make such a request," he explained, "only you know what a red I'm supposed to be. If I'm quoted as having seen a decent thing in that country, I'm liable to be cited for high treason."

Does all this imply that he considered himself, and was so considered, muddling rampageous? The correct answer appears to me to be in the affirmative.

BUT OF LATE?
Of late, though? That's different. The Montanan was a conspicuous plugger for Franklin D. Roosevelt's presidential nomination in 1932. He also campaigned vigorously for "F. D.'s" election.

All was well for awhile. Then President Roosevelt undertook to reorganize the federal supreme court—to "pack" it, as some said. Burton K. not only fought that proposal; he led the fight against it. Gosh! how sore that made the New Dealers! They'd expected opposition from the recognized conservatives. But from a chap like the Montana statesman! "What's the matter," they demanded, "with Wheeler?"

From that minute they began to denounce him as worse than a reactionary—as a deserter. Next thing somebody asked him if he'd accept a vice presidential nomination in 1940 on a ticket with Roosevelt, as a third term. He answered that he wouldn't—because he didn't believe in presidential third terms. This made the New Dealers madder than ever. They're not sure that "F. D." is a third term seeker, but they more than resent having anyone try, in advance, to foreclose against such a possibility.

gram. Within the last couple of weeks Burton K. also has voted against the administration's money bill, not to mention some of its other pet measures.

CAN HE BE A COMPROMISE?
He's been limelighted, anyway. Not altogether unfavorably, either.

Of course he's violently antagonized the do-or-die New Dealers, but there are quite a lot of good liberals who don't go quite as far as the New Deal extremists do and who emphatically are anti-third-termers. They still reckon B. K. into their lineup. On the opposite hand the conservatives are not as much afraid of him as they were. They doubtless would prefer a candidate with a more rightward past than his, but they do think that maybe he's a convert, and they hold that a convert, who perhaps can be elected, would be better than a dyed-in-the-wool old-timer, who wouldn't stand a chance of election.

Nor is he too old, like John N. Garner or Cordell Hull. Neither, any more, is he unduly one-sided, like Harry L. Hopkins, Harold L. Ickes or Henry Wallace.

His geography isn't first-class, but that might be balanced by an eastern tail to his ticket. He should catch some Republican votes, too—western Republicans especially. He isn't a corksing good orator, but in off-hand debate, he's a dandy. His personality's delightful. All in all, he's no IM-possibility.

Plantar Warts Yield to X-ray

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

THE QUESTION that comes from the frozen north is "what to do for plantar warts." (Plantar, according to the dictionary, means "Of and pertaining to the sole of the foot.")

Two misconceptions seem to obtain about them. One is that they are caused by infection, and are especially likely to be picked up around unsanitary operated swimming pools. The other is that there is some simple and cheap and home-made remedy that will remove them.

Form on Bottom of Foot

They generally form at points of pressure on the bottom of the foot. They appear on both feet and at symmetrical places. There are usually four or five of them, grouped, and often so closely grouped that they fuse.

The cores are soft and pulpy and surrounded by a firm horny ring. The core is characteristic and occurs in no other form of wart or callosity. Over the surface of the core may be seen multiple small black points. These are small blood vessels in which the blood has clotted, and the vessels may rupture, with the result that blood may cover the surface of the wart.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

They are exquisitely painful, much more so than even the most painful corn or callosity. They are so painful that in the course of time they entirely disable the victim. In this stage they prevent walking and demand treatment.

Common Remedies of No Avail
It has been suggested that some simple form of home treatment, such as the application of ordinary corn plasters, might work. None of these treatments ever does work completely. Old-fashioned professional surgical procedures, such as cauterization and cutting them out, resulted in painful wounds and scars. The use of the X-ray and electro-desiccation are the modern methods by which plantar warts may now be cured. This is not so generally known as it should be, Dr. George C. Andrews of New York says.

I am sorry that I cannot recommend any other methods, but it is best for those interested to know that, simple as they may seem themselves, trying home remedies on them is just a waste of time.

Electro-Desiccation

Electro-desiccation is accomplished by the use of diathermy in which the current generates in the tissues a heat sufficient to destroy. It is more selective than ordinary surgical cauterization. Most communities in the United States are not far from an institution which has apparatus of this kind. All communities are close to an X-ray apparatus. The X-ray will remove all plantar warts, although electro-desiccation is preferable for the large ones.

As to cause, there is an old discussion among dermatologists about warts. Some unquestionably are infections. But in most cases they are like benign tumors. Plantar warts are more likely to be the effect of pressure, moisture and chemical irritations than of infection.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

P. A. B.: "Will you please tell whether there is any method known to the medical profession of predetermining the sex of a child?"
Answer: No such method is known.

J. L. H.: "Is simple washing under a cold tap with or without soap sufficient cleansing for the home thermometer when used in infectious diseases?"
Answer: Yes, but an additional safeguard would be to wipe it with alcohol or formalin first.

Phantom Ranch

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY
CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS

LORENA HAMILTON, in the desert country of Arizona, to visit her uncle, meets SHOT ROGERS, one of the Phantom ranch cowboys at the railroad station. JERRY DALE, college bred, is a newcomer to Phantom ranch, who has corresponded with Lorena.

YESTERDAY: Jerry finds Lorena, following her escape from the Mexicans, tells her the Brazes, her aunt and uncle, have been greatly worried since Rogers' horse, carrying her dead bag, returned.

CHAPTER SEVEN

JERRY DALE didn't go back down trail to tell the posse that Lorena had been found. Instead, he put Midnight on a big mare and sent that black youngster. Midnight was delighted; thrilled with a sense of adventure and personal importance. He found the posse—swelled to nearly 20 men now, including Shot Rogers—nearing the Ghost river ford. They had stopped for a conference about dividing and combing the hills thoroughly for the missing girl or any tracks that might be a clue to her. They knew from the Negro's hallooing that he had news, even before he galloped up to them.

"What is it, Midnight?" George Brazes demanded sternly.

"Yassuh, whoo-wee, dis mare she sho can single-foot, Mistuh Brazes!"

"Where are you going? What is it? Have you—have they heard anything? Or—?" Mr. Brazes grasped the black lad's leg.

"Oh, Yassuh, a white lady done come in, Mistuh Jerry he took and brought her in; or a hoas, suh."

"Is she hurt? Dead? Answer me, Midnight!"

The men had pressed close, staring intently at him. Midnight seemed to discover their presence then, and looked round-eyed from one to the other while answering slowly.

"Naw, she ain't rightly dead, I reckon. But she don't look so pert. She—"

"She what?" Shot Rogers snapped this question at him.

"What about her? Was she badly mistreated? Was she conscious?" "Suh?"

"I say, was she conscious? Could she—good guns, kid! Could she talk and see and hear and all?"

Midnight swallowed. White cowboys were strange people sometimes, he knew. But he sort of worshipped Mistuh Shot Rogers and wanted to please him.

"Mistuh Shot, I never asked nobody, to tell you de truf. But I reckon she wasn't 'sconious none, naw suh. Leastways, it didn't show none, far as I could see, but I wasn't—"

"Let's get going!" George Brazes interrupted. "I want to thank all of you men. I'll do it better when I have more time. I don't guess we'll need the outside help any longer, since she's found, but any of you who want to ride on with us is welcome. You're always welcome at the Phantom, as you know."

He led off, spurring immediately to a lazy, easy gallop, the pace which a good horse can maintain indefinitely. Without a word of discussion the entire troop filed after him. They were a bunch of determined men, some quite stern of face, all of them a bit weary from a full night in the saddle, but all deeply concerned with the trouble facing George Brazes.

Shot Rogers and some of the others clung near the mare that young Midnight was riding and sought to question the lad again. "Has she been shot?" Rogers asked. "You sure she wasn't dead?" "Aw, Mistuh Shot, you ain't hurrah me none, leastways not in daylight, suh! I knows you all says it's ghosts in Ghost canyon and on Phantom ranch, but shuh!" Midnight was quite sophisticated about it; one of the cowboys himself now. "Listen, kid, I'm not hurrahing! I'm serious, can't you understand? Now answer me carefully—was she dead or not?"

"Ef she was, Mistuh Shot, den I sho seen a ghost in daylight! Who!"

"You mean—"

"She was walking along wid Miss Sally and Mistuh Jerry. He had his arm aroun' her, friendly like, and—"

"Why?"

"Suh?"

"Why did he have his arm around her? Was she—was he carrying her? Or helping her? Couldn't she talk?"

"Yas, suh, she was laughing and talking sweet talk to him, until Miss Sally sho rush out and cry."

"Um," murmured Shot Rogers then. He felt infinite relief. Four men had been killed in the recent Phantom ranch trouble with rustlers. It was inconceivable that a harmless girl, a stranger, should be harmed, but he had been responsible for sending her alone to the ranch from Blanco and he had been almost beside himself with worry.

"What happened to her, Midnight?" he went on. "That was a new horse of mine, all right, but he was trustworthy. And I saw she could ride. Did he throw her, or fall? Or what?"

"I never asked nobody, Mistuh Shot, suh."

The matter stood that way until the troop of riders reined in at the Brazes home itself. Mrs. Brazes had heard them coming. When she ran out to greet her husband and his friends, they expected the worst. They didn't see Jerry Dale smiling happily on the porch.

"What is it, Sally?" George Brazes demanded, calmly.

"George, she was kidnapped! By Mexicans!"

"The men all were alert, not even dismounting, in their intense interest. Shot Rogers edged forward.

"Go on," George requested. "What happened?"

She gave every detail she knew, but hers was second-hand information and so presently Lorena herself was brought out to talk with them. A load seemed to be lifted off the men when they saw, not a full night in the saddle, but a bright and smiling young woman, who was exceptionally pretty. Lorena had eaten amazingly, topped the meal with two cups of coffee and two hours in bed. Bruises still ached, but she felt good enough to ignore the pain.

She shook hands with every one of the men, adding special thanks to Rogers for his aid the day before. And then she had to face a siege of questioning which took nearly an hour.

"Well, sir," her Uncle George

remarked at last, "you probably done the only thing you could, honey, but I don't know why you weren't killed when you jumped off that cliff. I know the stretch of river you mean. The wall's high there. Must be 50 or 60 feet. You've got some of your Aunt Sally's spunk!"

"I hit in the soft tree foliage, as I told you. And the sand was soft. I counted on them before hand."

The men all were admiring her, not for her looks alone, but for her nerve. The talk shifted, however, to the kidnappers themselves.

"You say they talked about somebody named Luis Escobar?" Shot Rogers asked.

"Yes, Mr. Rogers. It sounded like that—like Louise Ace-ko-bar."

"It's a man's name. Spanish. Loo-ees, spelled L-u-i-s."

"Since those men were Mexicans," another rancher put in, "I'd bet they were in the gang responsible for you, cattle losses and for the death of those men, George."

"No doubt," agreed Mr. Brazes.

"Oh, George!" Mrs. Brazes spoke then. "Can't something be done to stop it? I—we can't have people—Lorena—anybody's life endangered this way! Can't we?"

"We can sure do something, Mrs. Brazes, ma'am! An elderly man declared. 'We'll ride down every trail in this country! If the law is unable to cope with them, why, we can do it ourselves.'"

"Certainly!" put in another. "If there aren't enough ranch men and sheriff's deputies, we could even get a bunch of army cavalry to help. There's men at Fort Huachuca."

"Hold on," said Shot Rogers, earnestly. "Didn't I hear you say once, Mr. Brazes, that you weren't sure where the line is? The line between the United States and Mexico?"

"That's right, son. My ranch property goes right to the line, according to deed. But it's awfully rugged and wild up there in the rough hills. Even the survey is vague. No markers or anything. It would cost a lot to have it re-surveyed, and—"

"Unh-hum," nodded Shot Rogers. "Well now, another thing—this Luis Escobar is no peanut rustler or border crook. He's a power in Mexico. An ex-revolutionist building another strong following. We'd get into a political mess if we brought soldiers; national diplomacy, and all that. It's a fight we better all pitch in to help you with, but keep it as quiet and among ourselves as we can."

Nobody answered at once. But Lorena, staring up at the mounted ranchmen, saw most of them nodding stolidly, earnestly. Somehow she sensed from their faces a premonition of action and danger to come.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Health insurance for iris

While certain iris will grow in the shade most varieties should have all the sun possible if they are to remain healthy and bloom freely. Bearded iris must be planted where they will have good drainage. Iris, if planted in the sun where they will also have good drainage, usually will prove healthy enough to resist the invasion of borers.

Bearded iris, as well as other varieties having fleshy rhizomes, should be planted with the top of the bulb exposed to the sun, as illustrated in the Garden-Graph. The roots of the rhizome should be firmly planted, however, to anchor the bulb until new root growth is made. The roots should be spread out and down as illustrated.

When planting iris the foliage should be cut back half of its original length in a V shape.

TAFT'S ACTION FINDS BRICKER OFFICE SILENT

Politicians And Observers Speculate Concerning Governor's Stand

on the air than Bricker had intended they receive. That the Ohio congressional delegation still is uncertain about Bricker's position was indicated in dispatches from Washington. Leading members of the delegation indicated that while they are willing to back any Ohio candidate for the G. O. P. nomination, a formal vote on the candidacy of Senator Taft may be delayed.

Reason for the delay, it was explained, is that some members would like further clarification of the situation in Ohio between Taft and Bricker.

However, a number of Ohio congressmen elected to make personal endorsements of the Taft candidacy immediately. These included Representatives Secombe, Jenkins, Clevenger, Lewis, Elston, Hess, Marshall, Vorys and Jones. Congressman Bender, of Cleveland, withheld a statement for the present.

Bowing to the wishes of the Hamilton county Republican executive committee, Senator Taft said he realized that in Ohio convention delegates must indicate their presidential preference and that the consent of the man they favor must be obtained first.

Not In Mad Rush

Therefore, he said, he would permit the use of his name by delegates, but he emphasized that he was not joining in a mad rush for the nomination. He said he was perfectly satisfied with being a senator.

Taft's decision drew warm praise from Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, who said:

"His record and public addresses evidence a broad understanding of our problems and definite ideas regarding their solution. The people of Ohio should feel proud that they are again able to offer the nation great leadership."

BIG DEFICIENCY BILL HOLDS UP END OF SESSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—Congressional plans for adjournment by tomorrow night hinged today on senate hopes for speedy handling of the third deficiency bill, a measure cut from $215,000,000 to $54,000,000 by the house.

All other legislative obstacles to quitting Saturday evening were swept away when the house pigeonholed the $500,000,000 housing bill and house leaders decided they would not seek action on pending amendments to the wage-hour law.

The deficiency bill was in the hands of a senate appropriations subcommittee headed by Senator Adams (D) Colorado, and cannot be reported to senate before late this afternoon. Adams called his subcommittee together for a 9 a. m. meeting, and the full committee took up the bill at 11, but requests from a score of governmental department heads for restoration of deep cuts made by the house forewarned of time-consuming discussion ahead.

There were reliable indications that the $119,000,000 of Commodity Credit Corporation funds deleted by the house from the deficiency bill would be restored by the committee. As for other cuts made by the house, prospects of returning the items to the bill were dim, but inevitably efforts to make the restorations, when the bill goes to the senate floor, will be made.

Numerous other awards were made to persons who attended the show.

MINISTER TELLS COMMONS CRISIS GROWS IN EAST

Opponents Of Chamberlain Urge Action Similar To Uncle Sam's

Chamberlain's security as sole director of policy during the trying next two months was based, however, largely on party discipline, and by this time, it was believed, conservative leaders have impressed on him that many members of his party doubt that his policy will be sufficiently firm during the recess.

Nearly 40 conservatives defied party whips and declined to participate in the vote of confidence given to Chamberlain Wednesday. They may suffer the heavy hand of party discipline, but at least their abstention proved an impressive display of mistrust in the prime minister.

TOKYO, Aug. 4—Twenty-five thousand yelling, banner-waving Japanese, with but little police interference, today staged their third gigantic anti-British demonstration outside the British embassy in defiance of Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie's repeated warnings that serious consequences may result.

The rally, in which the embassy staff was practically isolated for a large part of the day, coincided with strong indications that the civil government is yielding to powerful army pressure for an outright military alliance with Germany and Italy.

EX-CONVICT AND FRIEND INJURED IN DEATH PLOT

CLEVELAND, Aug. 4—Sam Salupo, a paroled convict, and Dorothy Evan, were critically injured when a dynamite bomb exploded in Salupo's automobile in suburban Shaker Heights today. Salupo was sent to Ohio penitentiary on a blackmail charge two years ago and was paroled last Jan. 20. He is connected with the window cleaning and nickel phonograph business.

Salupo and Miss Evan were taken to St. Luke's hospital, where both were said to be in very critical condition.

Force of the explosion was so great that one wheel of the automobile was blown 400 yards. Miss Evan was literally blown out of her shoes, which were found in the car, while she was picked up in a field beside the road.

the Rillo home to join the party but left immediately after an altercation with Mrs. Brigman. Deputies quoted him as saying:

"The more I drove the madder I got. By the time I reached home I was so mad I only thought of killing her. I took my gun and went back to Rillo's house."

He added that when he arrived at the Rillo home he found his wife seated on a porch with another man.

"She had her arms around his neck and was kissing him," Brigman was said to have told officers. "I was so mad I couldn't see."

The man, who could not be located immediately, fled when he saw Brigman. Screaming, the woman ran toward the street as the husband fired the fatal shot, deputies said.

When the deputies arrived, they reported he shouted:

"Kill me! Blow by brains out too."

the boys may have been asleep when their mother carried them to the window. Mrs. Langer was fully clothed.

Police said Mrs. Langer's left wrist had been cut before she jumped.

The husband answered police questions in broken English. He was quoted as saying he had feared his wife might do something desperate. He said she had grieved a great deal since the family was forced to flee from their homeland and lose their business.

Neighbors of the couple could tell little about them, describing them as being quiet and pleasant. The boys were described as "very cute and friendly, and mannerly."

Fortune Gone

The Langers came to the United States about a month ago on a six months' visitors' visa. They lived for a short time in a New York rooming house before coming to Chicago. Police said the family's once huge fortune had shrunk to a few hundred dollars.

Langer told a pitiful story of how he and his wife and children had become refugees without a country.

"We are non-Aryans," he said. "The suffering of Jews in Germany and Austria broke down my wife's health and spirit. She became active in helping all the refugees that came to Prague. She helped them in other cities. She was a cultured woman."

"We never dreamed that we ourselves would soon become refugees and be forced to wander from one place to another looking for a place to rest."

"I will never forget the day Hitler entered Prague. Immediately after that they confiscated my estate, took away my plant, and all my belongings. I managed to rescue a few dollars and trinkets."

Fled To United States

"We obtained a visa and came to the United States in the hope that we could settle here. Della began brooding. She had an intuition that we would be unable to stay here and would have to take our children back to Prague."

"She said she would rather be dead—not that she was missing her former comforts but because she was afraid to let her children live under Nazi rule."

"She said that if she got enough courage to die, she would take the children along."

Two and two always made four but it's the modern school child who knows that T. N. T. makes even a Hitler hesitate.

TAFT'S ACTION FINDS BRICKER OFFICE SILENT

Politicians And Observers Speculate Concerning Governor's Stand

on the air than Bricker had intended they receive.

That the Ohio congressional delegation still is uncertain about Bricker's position was indicated in dispatches from Washington. Leading members of the delegation indicated that while they are willing to back any Ohio candidate for the G. O. P. nomination, a formal vote on the candidacy of Senator Taft may be delayed.

Reason for the delay, it was explained, is that some members would like further clarification of the situation in Ohio between Taft and Bricker.

However, a number of Ohio congressmen elected to make personal endorsements of the Taft candidacy immediately. These included Representatives Seccombe, Jenkins, Cleveland, Lewis, Elston, Hess, Marshall, Vorys and Jones. Congressman Bender, of Cleveland, withheld a statement for the present.

Bowing to the wishes of the Hamilton county Republican executive committee, Senator Taft said he realized that in Ohio convention delegates must indicate their presidential preference and that the consent of the man they favor must be obtained first.

Not In Mad Rush

Therefore, he said, he would permit the use of his name by delegates, but he emphasized that he was not joining in a mad rush for the nomination. He said he was perfectly satisfied with being a senator.

Taft's decision drew warm praise from Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert, who said:

"His record and public addresses evidence a broad understanding of our problems and definite ideas regarding their solution. The people of Ohio should feel proud that they are again able to offer the nation great leadership."

BIG DEFICIENCY BILL HOLDS UP END OF SESSION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4—Congressional plans for adjournment by tomorrow night hinged today on senate hopes for speedy handling of the third deficiency bill, a measure cut from $215,000,000 to $54,000,000 by the house.

All other legislative obstacles to quitting Saturday evening were swept away when the house piggybacked the $500,000,000 housing bill and house leaders decided they would not seek action on pending amendments to the wage-hour law.

The deficiency bill was in the hands of a senate appropriations subcommittee headed by Senator Adams (D) Colorado, and cannot be reported to senate before late this afternoon. Adams called his subcommittee together for a 9 a. m. meeting, and the full committee took up the bill at 11, but requests from a score of governmental department heads for restoration of deep cuts made by the house forewarned of time-consuming discussion ahead.

There were reliable indications that the $119,000,000 of Commodity Credit Corporation funds deleted by the house from the deficiency bill would be restored by the committee. As for other cuts made by the house, prospects of returning the items to the bill were dim, but inevitably efforts to make the restoration, when the bill goes to the senate floor, will be made.

Numerous other awards were made to persons who attended the show.

Circleville merchants who exhibited their electrical devices at the show were unanimous in their opinions that the event was a highly successful one.

The Lutz farm, north of Amanda, was used for the show.

SLUGGER NAMED JOE REVIVES YANKS WITH BATTING AGAINST TIGERS

DI MAGGIO HITS TWO HOME RUNS, JUMPS AVERAGE

Red Sox Keep Pace By Clubbing Cleveland In 17-6 Joust

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Manager Joe McCarthy of the New York Yankees today was giving many thanks for the presence in the champions' outfield of jolting Joe DiMaggio. And with good reason.

Not only did Joe raise his average back to an even .400 with three hits out of five against the Detroit Tigers yesterday, but he unloaded two homers and a single to drive to five runs and pace his awakening mates to a 12 to 3 triumph, snapping a three game losing streak.

Inspired by the San Francisco smacker's example, the Yankee artillery, which has been strangely quiet of late, awoke and blasted 16 safeties off three pitchers, beginning with Buck Newsom who was tagged with the defeat. Bill Dickey and Red Rolfe also smashed homers, Bill's being his 17th of the season.

Although Monte Pearson was reached for 11 hits by the Tigers, he found it easy to register his ninth victory of the year.

Sox Club Indians

The Boston Red Sox, 7½ games behind in the American league race, ran over the Cleveland Indians, 17 to 6, with 19 hits. Boston sent 13 men to bat and scored nine runs in the eighth. Manager Joe Cronin getting two doubles.

Over in the National league, the St. Louis Cardinals dropped the Boston Bees twice, 5 to 1 and 4 to 3, pulling up to within 9½ games of the pacesetter Cincinnati Reds whose games with the New York Giants was rained out. Enos Slaughter rapped two homers and storm-cented Ducky Medwick rapped one in the St. Louis cause.

Two rookies—Outfielder Bill Nicholson and two-triples and a single and Shortstop Bobby Mattick with a double and a single—starred for the Chicago Cubs as they turned back the Philadelphia Phillies, 9 to 6. Bill Lee tied in the eighth and was replaced, but he received credit for his 12th victory.

The Brooklyn Dodgers got 13 hits behind Tom Presnell's eight-hit pitching to lick the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4 to 1, and tie the idle Giants for fifth place with a .500 percentage.

Case Goes To Town

In the American league, Washington beat the St. Louis Browns, 9 to 5, as Outfielder George Case had a field day. Case got a single, double, triple and walk in five trips to the plate and stole three bases to lift his total to 37. Clint Brown, ace White Sox reliever, made his 41st mound appearance as Chicago downed the Philadelphia Athletics, 9 to 7. He came in after Bob Johnson's seventh-inning single made the score 9 to 7. He got Frank to hit into a double play and kept the bases cleared in the last two innings.

DAIRY SOFTBALL CREW VICTOR IN 11 TO 0 CONTEST

Blue Ribbon Dairy's softball team, with diminutive Don Valentine smacking out a home run with the paths loaded and turning in a brilliant job in the field, turned back the Frisinger Contractors, 11-0, in a league game.

Fowler pitched for the winners and Butler for the losers. Valentine, who has been acting as bat boy for the team backed by his dad, clubbed out a circuit blow in the third inning.

No game is scheduled this evening although the Blue Ribbon crew will play an exhibition with some unnamed team.

Byron Eby, league president, said Friday that he would like to hear from the Cooper Oil team concerning its intentions for the remainder of the year. Eby has been informed that the Cooper crew plans to drop out of the league.

Next week's schedule follows:

Monday: Wallace-Glitt vs. Contractors.
Tuesday: Eshelman Feeds vs. Purina Feeds.
Wednesday: Monarch A. C. vs. Blue Ribbon Dairy.
Thursday: Cooper Oils vs. Contractors.
Friday: Monarch A. C. vs. Eshelman Feeds.

Bucky Walters, Reformed Infielder, Thrills Fans With His Pitching Feats

Bucky Walters... pitcher

That good right arm

Bucky Walters... infielder

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—A year ago a young man by the name of John Vander Meer (now Double No-Hit Johnny) drew the attention and the glad hands of major league fans by his pitching feats. Today another Cincinnati pitcher star occupies that stepladder. Yes, it's Bucky Walters.

Quick-thinking folk remember William Henry Walters (Bucky to everyone) as a fine fielding player who came up to the big league by way of Boston of the American loop and Boston and Philadelphia of the National loop—not as a pitcher.

Bucky, who had pitched as well as played third base in his minor league career, began his major league hurling spiel in 1934, when he twirled seven innings for the Phils. He gradually has improved his slab work until today he leads both leagues in games won and threatens to go on to perhaps 25 victories.

Hard Worker

A right-handed thrower, the veteran major league player has become a demon for work. He has pitched in more games than many of the strong-arm regular major league stars. And he has exhibited fine control, baffling offerings and a winning way.

Now 29 years old, Bucky looks back to 1929 for his first professional baseball experience. That was with High Point in the Piedmont league, where he played in 90 games, both as a pitcher and as a third baseman. He pitched 16 games that year, winning five.

From the Piedmont league Bucky had a varied career in the minors. He was with Providence in the Eastern league, Williamsport in the New York-Pennsylvania league, Montreal in the International loop and the Mission club of the Pacific Coast organization. His first major league try with the Boston of the National league in 1931, when he played in nine games at third base.

Hit .376 Once

Bucky never has been a slugger. One season, with the Missions, he compiled the masterful average of .376, batting in 92 runs. That was enough for major league scouts, and he came to Boston, staying there until 1934, when he went to the Phils.

Cincinnati got him last June in a trade for Virgil Davis, Al Hollingsworth and reported cash of $55,000.

The Red right hander's best pitching year prior to this season was in 1935, when he won 11 games while losing six for Cincinnati. His first-year major mark is 49 games won and 59 lost. His eight-year major batting average is .243.

Bucky was born in Philadelphia in 1910. He bats right handed. He stands an inch over six feet and weighs 180 pounds.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Two important moves confront Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers today on fistiana's chess board.

The boys, who are soon to fight desperately for the possession of the lightweight title, must make decisions which will have a great bearing on their futures.

Armstrong, after winning the featherweight title, had to relinquish it because he found it impossible to keep down to that mark and still be strong enough to protect his welterweight title.

Now he is finding it difficult to make the 135-pound limit and be strong enough for a defense of the lightweight crown. He came on from Hot Springs, Ark., weighing 143 before starting to train for the Ambers fight. That means that Hank must take off 10 pounds to be safely under on Aug. 22.

That can't go on forever and the next may be Henry's last fight as a lightweight. He won't make the weight many times after that. It will be a physical impossibility. He will then center his attention on the 147-pound coronet, the last of his three crowns.

Ambers will retire if he is beaten in his efforts to regain his title from Armstrong. Lou wants to get married and live on the money he has earned as a boxer.

REDS TO TANGLE WITH BROOKLYN BENEATH LIGHTS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4.—The Brooklyn Dodgers were due in Cincinnati today for a night game that would open a series with the league-leading Reds. Rain forced postponement of the game between the Rhinelanders and the New York Giants yesterday.

A day of idleness and two defeats at the hand of the Giants drove the Reds back from their comfortable lead. The team now is nine and a half games ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

STAR OF GIANTS IS UNDERRATED

Mel Ott's Ability To Escape Limelight Discussed

By Pat Robinson
NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Almost all ball players would like to play on a New York Club—Yanks, Giants or Dodgers.

New York, they tell you, is where they get most publicity and most money. According to them, one goes hand in hand with the other, provided a player delivers the goods.

Normally, that's true. Even an ordinary player, if he has any color at all, will get more publicity than he deserves in New York. A colorful, extraordinary player like Babe Ruth will get more publicity than is good for him and a great, but colorless individual like Lou Gehrig will certainly get as much as he needs.

But there is one great exception to this rule. His name is Mel Ott. Now here is a great player. One of the greatest the game ever saw. A man who comes close to being the ideal ball player in every respect.

He is a wonderful outfielder. He can throw with the best. He's smart. He's always trying. He is a home run hitter and the powerhouse of his club. He does everything asked of him, quietly and efficiently, and he never squawks.

He is playing his 14th year with the Giants and for the most of that time he has been the main cog in the Giants' machine. He is popular with fans, players and scribes.

And with all that he is probably the best publicized great star who ever played the game.

The reason for this lack of printed recognition, of course, is to be found in the character of the man.

If he were a screwball or a drunk or a rowdy he probably would have had as much publicity as anybody. But he is none of those things and his play is so flawless that everybody takes anything he does—no matter how wonderful—as a matter of course.

When he first joined the club he had a few fist fights with the visiting ball players, or been "kidnapped" while on a drunk, or carried a bird in his hat, the papers would be writing reams about him today even when he sneezed.

But he did none of these things and so, in a way, he is the forgotten man of the Giants. Apparently, more perfection is no news in a ball player. He must also be a nut of some sort if he wants to be called colorful.

We recently attended a game in which Mel made some marvelous plays in the outfield and won with his hitting. As we left the park we overheard two fans talking it over. "Nice game Ott played," said one. "Yeah, he's all right," said the other without much enthusiasm. Then he added: "But, say, didja see that Bonura got his feet all tangled up that time? Thought I'd die laughing. Great guy that Bonura."

Fortunately for Mel, the Giants' management has a better understanding of his value, and he is accordingly, one of the best paid players in baseball.

JANET SHOCK WINS TOP HONORS IN TOURNAMENT

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Another triumph was credited today to Janet Shock, Dayton's top-notch feminine golfer, this time first honors in the ladies' invitational tournament at the Wyandot Country club.

Miss Shock turned in a 40-39 for a 79, one over women's par, to take the low gross prize in the first division.

Low net went to Mrs. J. C. Ransom, of Mt. Vernon—88-10—78. Next was Mrs. E. McFarland, of Zanesville, with 90-10 for an 80.

The man at the next desk says the quickest way to find the millinery department in a department store is to find the counters displaying objects which couldn't possibly be hats. That's it.

Can't You Impress Him, Lou?

FROM the looks of things here, we'd say that Lou Ambers, left, is tooting his own horn about what he'll do to Henry Armstrong, the double champ, when the two meet in a New York ring, Aug. 22, for Henry's lightweight crown. But Hurricane Henry doesn't seem to be impressed by the conversation.

RED BIRDS HOPE TO OPEN SERIES WITH COLONELS

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Forced into a day of idleness by rain, the Columbus Red Birds today hoped to open a series against Louisville with a double-header. The Colonels are in fourth place in the American association race.

Kansas City was back in the lead in the circuit with a 1 to 0 victory over the second-place Minneapolis Millers.

The evenly matched teams remained scoreless until the seventh inning, when Ralph Boyle, left fielder, broke the spell with a home run.

At Milwaukee, two home runs gave the Brewers the edges over St. Paul. The score was 5 to 2.

Playing at Toledo, the Louisville Colonels put on a five-hit rally in the 13th inning to beat the Mud Hens 6 to 2.

JACOBS GROWING FACTOR IN BIG TENNIS TOURNAMENT

EASTHAMPTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Helen Jacobs of Berkeley, Cal., four-time national champion, was a growing factor today in the Maudslowe club's annual invitation tournament as the result of the quarterfinal developments.

While Miss Jacobs was snuffing out Mme. Rene Mathieu, French champion, and losing only four games in two sets, Wimbledon and National Champion Alice Marble was dropping a set for the first time this year, and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan of Brookline, Mass., had to give to the limit to win over Dorothy May Bundy of Santa Monica, Cal.

Miss Marble found in Pauline Betz, young Los Angeles girl who held the national indoor title, an opponent willing to exchange deep drives with her. The result was a three-set engagement, 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, that didn't break in favor of Miss Marble till the final game.

The semi-final pairings pit Miss Jacobs against Mrs. Fabyan, and Miss Marble against Dorothy Workman of Los Angeles, nationally sixth ranking woman player. Miss Workman advanced a straight-set triumph over Virginia Foland of San Francisco.

VITAL PROBLEMS TO BE DECIDED BY TWO FIGHTERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Two important moves confront Henry Armstrong and Lou Ambers today on fistiana's chess board. The boys, who are soon to fight desperately for the possession of the lightweight title, must make decisions which will have a great bearing on their futures.

Armstrong, after winning the featherweight title, had to relinquish it because he found it impossible to keep down to that mark and still be strong enough to protect his welterweight title.

Now he is finding it difficult to make the 135-pound limit and be strong enough for a defense of the lightweight crown. He came on from Hot Springs, Ark., weighing 143 before starting to train for the Ambers fight. That means that Hank must take off 10 pounds to be safely under on Aug. 22.

That can't go on forever and the next may be Henry's last fight as a lightweight. He won't make the weight many times after that. It will be a physical impossibility. He will then center his attention on the 147-pound coronet, the last of his three crowns.

Ambers will retire if he is beaten in his efforts to regain his title from Armstrong. Lou wants to get married and live on the money he has earned as a boxer.

REDS TO TANGLE WITH BROOKLYN BENEATH LIGHTS

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4.—The Brooklyn Dodgers were due in Cincinnati today for a night game that would open a series with the league-leading Reds. Rain forced postponement of the game between the Rhinelanders and the New York Giants yesterday.

A day of idleness and two defeats at the hand of the Giants drove the Reds back from their comfortable lead. The team now is nine and a half games ahead of the second-place St. Louis Cardinals.

STAR OF GIANTS IS UNDERRATED

Mel Ott's Ability To Escape Limelight Discussed

By Pat Robinson

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Almost all ball players would like to play on a New York Club—Yanks, Giants or Dodgers.

New York, they tell you, is where they get most publicity and most money. According to them, one goes hand in hand with the other, provided a player delivers the goods.

Normally, that's true. Even an ordinary player, if he has any color at all, will get more publicity than he deserves in New York. A colorful, extraordinary player like Babe Ruth will get more publicity than is good for him and a great, but colorless individual like Lou Gehrig will certainly get as much as he needs.

But there is one great exception to this rule. His name is Mel Ott. Now here is a great player. One of the greatest the game ever saw. A man who comes close to being the ideal ball player in every respect.

He is a wonderful outfielder. He can throw with the best. He's smart. He's always trying. He is a home run hitter and the powerhouse of his club. He does everything asked of him, quietly and efficiently, and he never squawks.

He is playing his 14th year with the Giants and for the most of that time he has been the main cog in the Giants' machine. He is popular with fans, players and scribes.

And with all that he is probably the best publicized great star who ever played the game. The reason for this lack of printed recognition, of course, is to be found in the character of the man.

If he were a screwball or a drunk or a rowdy he probably would have had as much publicity as anybody. But he is none of those things and his play is so flawless that everybody takes anything he does—no matter how wonderful—as a matter of course.

When he first joined the club he had a few fist fights with the visiting ball players, or been "kidnapped" while on a drunk, or carried a bird in his hat, the papers would be writing reams about him today even when he sneezed.

But he did none of these things and so, in a way, he is the forgotten man of the Giants. Apparently, more perfection is no news in a ball player. He must also be a nut of some sort if he wants to be called colorful.

We recently attended a game in which Mel made some marvelous plays in the outfield and won with his hitting. As we left the park we overheard two fans talking it over. "Nice game Ott played," said one. "Yeh, he's all right," said the other without much enthusiasm. Then he added: "But, say, didja see that Bonura get his feet all tangled up that time? Thought I'd die laughing. Great guy that Bonura."

Fortunately for Mel, the Giants' management has a better understanding of his value, and he is accordingly, one of the best paid players in baseball.

JANET SHOCK WINS TOP HONORS IN TOURNAMENT

COLUMBUS, Aug. 4.—Another triumph was credited today to Janet Shock, Dayton's top-notch feminine golfer, this time first honors in the ladies' invitational tournament at the Wyandot Country club.

Miss Shock turned in a 40-39 for a 79, one over women's par, to take the low gross prize in the first division.

Low net went to Mrs. J. C. Ranson, of Mt. Vernon—88-10—78. Next was Mrs. E. McFarland, of Zanesville, with 90-10 for an 80.

The man at the next desk says the quickest way to find the millinery department in a department store is to find the counters displaying objects which couldn't possibly be hats. That's it.

Stay at Home and Shop by Phone! You Can If You Have a Telephone— for All Good Business and Professional People Have Telephones

Can't You Impress Him, Lou?

FROM the looks of things here, we'd say that Lou Ambers, left, is tooting his own horn about what he'll do to Henry Armstrong, the double champ, when the two meet in a New York ring, Aug. 22, for Henry's lightweight crown. But Hurricane Henry doesn't seem to be impressed by the conversation.

RALSTON-PURINA FACTORY INSTALLS NEW BOILER IN SOYBEAN PLANT

ALL EMPLOYEES RETAIN PLACES DURING CHANGE

Feed Mixing Equipment To Be Placed On Second Floor Of Building

IMPROVEMENTS NOTED

Bean Crop Expected To Be
Greatest In History
Of County

Announcement was made Friday that the soybean plant of the Ralston-Purina Co. will be shut down until about Aug. 21 for the installation of a new boiler.

In addition to the boiler work, the feed mixing equipment of the plant is being moved to the second floor of the new building erected this year in the expansion program of the plant.

The suspension of operations in the soybean plant does not mean any employees will be out of work, officials explained. The men have been transferred to other work while the improvements are being made.

The Ralston-Purina Co. has made many improvements on its Circleville plant this year. New storage bins were constructed boosting the storage capacity of the plant to 500,000 bushels of grain, practically double the previous storage capacity. An additional building was added, practically doubling the capacity of the feed plant.

Soybeans Set Record

Plant officials predict Pickaway county farmers are going to have the largest crop of soybeans in the county's history. They explained the crop is keeping pace with the bumper corn crop.

Barring unusual weather conditions they predicted the harvest of beans would be started about the middle of September with the peak of the crop moving in October.

The Circleville plant of the Ralston-Purina Co. processes about one million bushels of beans annually.

The Container Corporation plant has been closed for about two weeks while the stack is being built to 170 feet and boiler improvements are being made. The stack was formerly 110 feet.

Haven't seen all six yet, but the first village councilman we contacted inquiring of him as to how he feels about another term on the board, he emphatically stated there be an end to his service as village councilman about January 1, 1940. Thinks a "good thing" like serving on a village council should be passed around. Don't believe in third terms anyway, he said. We are telling you of Charles Cloud, the long time insurance man.

But almost across the street from Mr. Cloud is the home of one S. C. Allison who has had years of experience as marshal, strett commissioner and care taker of school building and grounds. And without "giving it a good think" as Elmer of the funnies, says, we are naming Mr. Allison for the vacancy caused by the refusal of Mr. Cloud to longer serve. So this is one of the six. The other five will be named later.

And while we're on this bossing job we'd like to do something, without getting unduly "rough and tough" on these dozen or more youngsters who have so much good fun riding their vicycles on the sidewalks. But what this "best something" is, you're telling us. A moderate speed would help a lot toward preventing someone being knocked down and badly hurt. Yes, you are right, this is easy said. The boys are alright but they just forget the danger part.

Just looking at a lot of green melons is not very attractive to us, so we had to refuse Frank Grice to go along with him when he
